

HOWARD COUNTY PUBLIC SCHOOL SYSTEM

EDUCATIONAL Partnerships

2012-2013 Annual Report

SUPERINTENDENT'S Message

The Howard County Public School System is entering an exciting new era. Over the next five years, we will build a world class educational system where all students are inspired to learn, challenged to grow and empowered to reach for their goals.

We are fortunate in Howard County that community spirit is among our greatest assets. Businesses, non-profit organizations and government agencies donate countless hours, immeasurable resources and invaluable expertise to help our students build a mindset of success by providing opportunities for them to do things they enjoy and build upon their strengths.

The activities highlighted in this report illustrate many of the ways that our partners add value to the educational process, helping to secure the future for our community as well as for our children.

The HCPSS is indebted to all of our educational partners for the generous support that has helped position our system to become truly world class. Thank you for joining with us to prepare each Howard County student for lifelong success.

Sincerely,

Renee A. Foose, Ed.D.

2012-2013 Annual Report

More than 1,000 community partners collaborate with Howard County educators in preparing students for success in a changing world. Partners have been instrumental to the school system's success for more than 25 years. They will serve an even more critical role as the HCPSS implements its new strategic plan, Vision 2018, Fulfilling the Promise of Preparation.

The strategic plan takes a holistic approach encompassing all of the elements that make up our school system: students, staff, families and community, and the organization. Values reflected in the plan include Collaboration, Rigor and Acceleration, Engagement, Performance, and Well-Being.

Partnership activities support the vision of the plan by broadening students' experiences, enriching classroom lessons, and helping children discover hidden strengths and new interests. In many cases, partnership programs assist struggling students as they gain mastery in basic skills; in others, they spark a commitment to lifelong wellness, or open a window to an unexpected career path.

The following pages highlight partnership activities and provide examples of the vital role partners play in engaging every student to discover and reach their full potential. The strength of the HCPSS is evidenced by the commitment and diversity of its partnership organizations, who are united in having a real and positive impact on students' lives.

COLLABORATION

Each year, the Sheraton Columbia Town Center Hotel hosts the HCPSS Partnerships Celebration, where Superintendent Renee A. Foose and Board of Education members have an opportunity to meet and thank school system partners.

Howard County organizations and companies have a reputation for working together to ensure that our community is a great place to live, learn, and work. This unsurpassed community collaboration provides the HCPSS with support from more than 1,000 partners, representing businesses, non-profits, government agencies, civic clubs, colleges and universities, faith-based groups, military commands, trade associations, and professional organizations. Education truly is a community effort in Howard County.

Community partners participate in many ways to support rigorous instruction, provide engaging activities, bolster performance, and ensure the well-being of HCPSS students and staff members. They help prepare today's students for tomorrow's careers, extend the classroom into the community, engage in meaningful school involvement and provide valuable resources and opportunities to enhance teaching and learning.

The HCPSS welcomes the collective ideas and talents of our community stakeholders. New ideas and a passion for reaching higher energizes everyone – students, staff, and the community. The input of community representatives on curriculum and policy advisory committees, school planning councils, strategic planning focus groups, and other decision-making teams is invaluable.

The HCPSS is recognized as a leading school system, but many do not know that it also is the largest business in Howard County with 7,981 employees and 82 locations. As the county and education continue to change, the HCPSS continuously evaluates its progress to become more focused, efficient, and effective.

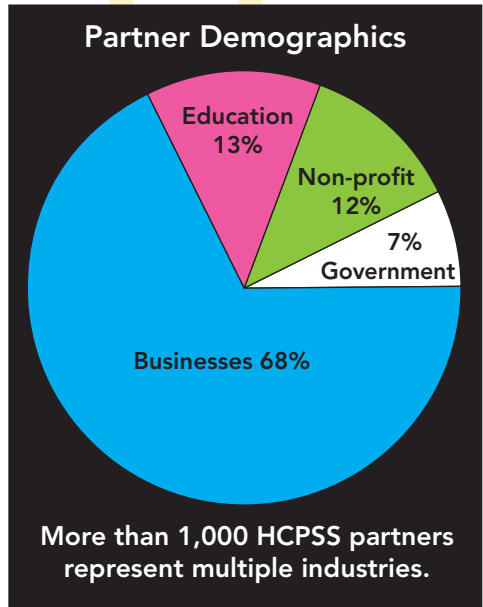

What Makes a Successful Partnership?

Successful, rewarding and sustainable educational partnerships have the following characteristics:

- Good match, with related interests and objectives for both partner and school. Identify mutual goals and align business and academic disciplines – science, fine arts, finance, culinary, engineering, etc.
- Well planned, with defined, specific activities and responsibilities for all participants. Draft written partnership agreements and focus partnerships to meet strategic goals.
- Supported with resources, allocating sufficient people, budget, time, and other resources to allow the partnership to succeed. Identify a “champion” within the organization and school to coordinate partnership activities and communications.
- Ongoing two-way communication, which is the cornerstone of a successful relationship.
- Evaluation and evolution, establishing measurable criteria and evaluating the effectiveness of the partnership on a regular basis.

Exchanging information with a wide variety of stakeholders is important to the vitality of the school system and the county overall. The HCPSS collaborates with Leadership Howard County, the Howard County Chamber of Commerce and the Association of Community Services of Howard County to disseminate HCPSS information to their members that is timely, relevant, and easily accessible. Likewise, hundreds of nonprofit organizations communicate information about their programs by submitting notices to the HCPSS Public Information Office for distribution to its 75 schools for posting in their newsletters.

Community leaders share their expertise to help students discover how classroom learning relates to the real world. Businesses make a unique contribution to education by welcoming students into their businesses via internships. Thousands of HCPSS high school students take their first steps into rewarding careers in fields such as engineering, medicine or culinary arts with the support of a professional mentor.

Partnership relationships also offer real benefits to the participating businesses and organizations. While working directly with students, a company has an opportunity to nurture future talent and identify capable potential employees. Student interns bring a fresh perspective to a business, and offer the viewpoint of the upcoming generation. Business partners also gain a greater appreciation of public education and the rewards and challenges of teaching.

Community leaders provide key input to the school system's strategic plan, Vision 2018, Fulfilling the Promise of Preparation at one of the focus groups held throughout the county. More than 2,400 participants shared ideas about their experiences, hopes and aspirations for the school system.

The school system's educational foundation, the Bright Minds Foundation, partners with Capital One Bank to teach financial literacy to students and their families during a computer training session.

Partners also share with students the importance of being a good citizen, teach the value of having a well-rounded and healthy lifestyle, and support those who otherwise may not have access to resources and supplies that many take for granted. The Bright Minds Foundation, the HCPSS educational foundation, supports equity, innovation and lifelong learning for students and staff members. Bright Minds has provided computers, printers, and flash drives to more than 500 students and their families who do not have the financial means to purchase computers. The Foundation also awards competitive grants ranging from $500-$2,000 to educators in support of their efforts to put innovative teaching and learning strategies into practice that help prepare students for the 21st century workplace.

It's easy to become a partner with local schools and the rewards can be great.

COLLABORATION through the years

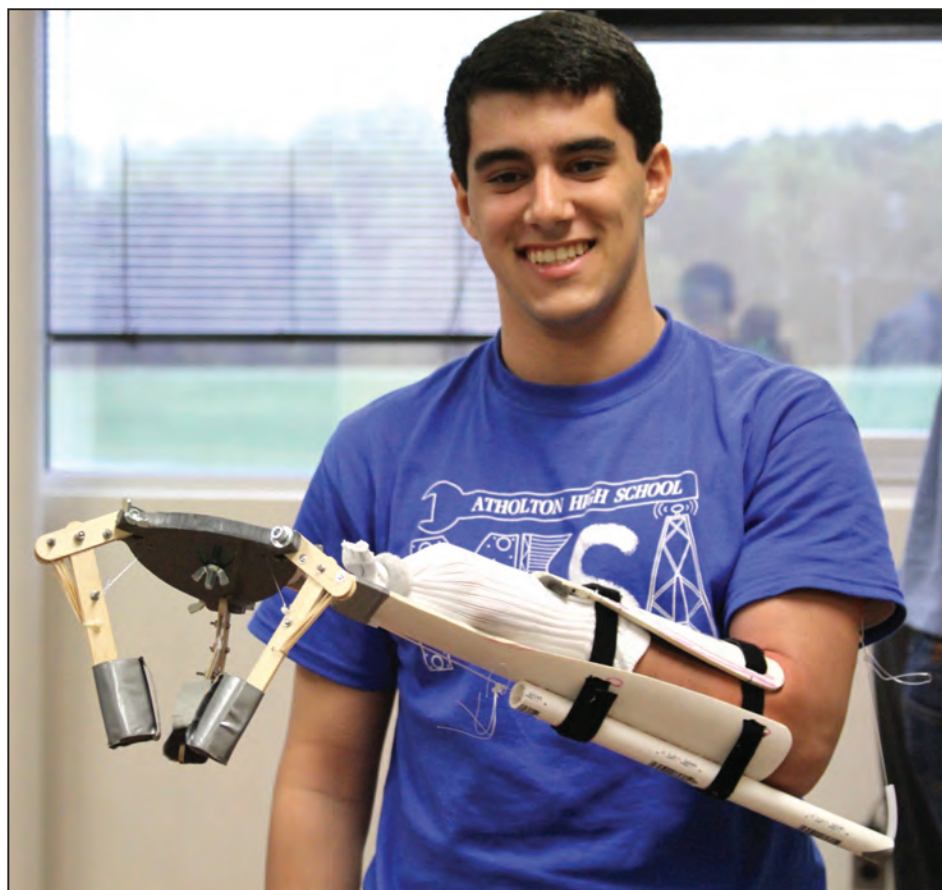

Founding Partner Continues to INSPIRE STUDENTS

The Johns Hopkins University Applied Physics Laboratory (APL), one of the school system's founding partners, has offered hands-on opportunities and guidance to students for more than 25 years. In 2011, APL created a STEM Program Office in recognition of the strategic importance of its K-12 science, technology, engineering and math outreach efforts. STEM Program Manager Dwight Carr explained, "We are doing a great job inspiring students, but are looking to do more."

Each year, APL staff members volunteer their time to work with approximately 2,000 Howard County students through a wide range of time-honored programs as well as targeted initiatives to meet a specific need. APL's STEM programs include the following:

- ASPIRE High School Mentoring
- College Prep Program
- Girl Power
- Groovy Science Show
- Maryland MESA
- APL/NASA Education and Public Outreach
- Python Programming
- Robotics Programs

Providing rigorous and accelerated instruction in a fun and engaging way is central to all of APL's STEM programs. Some 800 HCPSS students have participated in the APL intern program, ASPIRE (APL Student Program to Inspire, Relate and Enrich). APL mentors guide students to complete an independent research project related to computer science, applied physics, or biomedical engineering and research. Students who participate in this demanding program must have good analytical skills, mature judgment, and the ability to communicate effectively and function independently. Students are involved in globally relevant and intellectually challenging research that already is making an impact in a highly competitive and fast-paced industry.

"We are doing a great job inspiring students, but we are looking to do more."

– Dwight Carr
APL STEM Program Manager

APL sponsors the Maryland chapter of MESA (Mathematics, Engineering, Science Achievement), a national STEM program that engages students in hands-on applications of math, engineering, science, and technology concepts through projects and competitions. MESA's rigorous academics, leadership preparation, and collaborative problem-solving training produce highly skilled graduates who meet the industry's workforce needs.

Evan Olney is one such graduate. Evan joined MESA in sixth grade and stayed in the program throughout high school because each year he found something new and exciting. "MESA became one of the most significant parts of my HCPSS career, and even during my higher education days studying chemical engineering, I used methods learned in MESA." The North Carolina A&T State University and Oakland Mills High School graduate now is pursuing a career working with robotics.

Most recently, APL collaborated with the school system to increase the algebra proficiency of HCPSS middle school students so that insufficient math skills would not be a deterrent to students pursuing higher-level math and science classes in high school. Sixteen APL professionals volunteered as after-school tutors for 53 students in four middle schools. HCPSS Secondary Mathematics Coordinator Bill Barnes explained, "Staff identified students at risk of failing the Algebra High School Assessment to participate in the APL tutoring program. It really made a difference; 96 percent of the students tutored passed the assessment in May."

APL's STEM Program Management Office is also creating opportunities for students to expand their learning beyond the school day. In 2012, Carr and his team produced a website, www.jhuapl.edu/STEM, that provides information, tools and activities for students, teachers and parents. The website is updated often with many visitors returning to see the latest on-demand videos, STEM-related activities that students can perform independently, calendar of STEM events and competitions, and links to helpful sites where students can learn even more about science. Carr shared that many visitors come back to read Fifth Period, a fun and quirky STEM comic strip that chronicles the adventures of a group of school friends and their science teacher.

The APL's STEM program draws students to its website by offering a variety of fun and engaging resources. Students often revisit the site to keep up with Fifth Period, a comic strip that chronicles the adventures of a group of school friends and their science teacher.

RIGOR & ACCELERATION

Students today are growing up in a technology-driven, media-rich environment, where changes in science, technology and communications are happening at an ever-increasing pace. Students must receive rigorous, globally relevant, up-to-date instruction that prepares them to meet the requirements of college or a career. At the same time, reducing the barriers some students face will ensure that all students have access to the challenges and rewards of rigorous instruction.

Howard County businesses and organizations are key to ensuring that the instruction students receive prepares them with the skills necessary to meet the requirements of tomorrow's jobs. Representatives from partnership organizations visit elementary and middle school classrooms and work directly with students and teachers to enhance classroom lessons with hands-on activities, helping students discover the wonders of many subjects. High school students have opportunities to work directly with industry experts to gain real-world experience that is invaluable in charting a career path and preparing for success later in life.

Students begin to learn research, analytical thinking, teamwork, and public speaking skills in elementary school. Many of those students have an opportunity to display their skills before a panel of judges at Simulated Congressional Hearings, a culminating activity of the HCPSS 5th grade social studies curricular program, "We the People: The Citizen and the Constitution." The hearing judges often include representatives from the U.S. Congress, Maryland General Assembly, Howard County Council, Howard County Office of the State's Attorney, League of Women Voters of Howard County, Howard County Board of Elections and many other community businesses and organizations.

Malerie Gamblin, a high school senior and member of the Girl Scouts of Central Maryland, developed and coordinated Music Counts!, for her Girl Scout Gold Award project. Students at Monarch Mills Community and Swansfield Elementary learning centers explored music concepts and different instruments, and then performed in a concert.

Playing the role of constitutional experts, fifth grade students at 33 HCPSS elementary schools demonstrate their understanding of the United States Constitution and the Bill of Rights by presenting prepared oral statements before a panel of judges.

Third, fourth and fifth grade students at Guilford Elementary look forward to working with members of Omega Psi Phi Fraternity, Tau Pi Chapter. In addition to reviewing agenda books, checking homework, and discussing the week, the fraternity members talk with students about a variety of topics ranging from everyday etiquette to environmental awareness.

Creativity, innovation, problem solving, and critical thinking are all at work when NASA engineers visit middle schools to lead hands-on engineering activities and talk about their education and career paths. Working in small groups, students design and create miniature race cars using household items such as Styrofoam, straws, coffee stirrers and balloons. The program showcases NASA engineers and helps inspire students to pursue STEM careers.

Software services company Sofiac has educated, mentored and motivated Howard County students since becoming an HCPSS partner in 2007. The partnership has grown from offering in-class lectures on technology, to providing students with opportunities to develop a depth of knowledge through small group authentic software and web-development projects and weekend computer workshops. Sofiac founder Brian Walsh also conducts presentations that demonstrate the relevance of STEM activities in real life applications.

Many other organizations encourage their staff to donate time and talents to enhance student achievement. Honeywell Technology Solutions, Inc., W. R. Grace & Co., and the National Security Agency (NSA) are three of the many dedicated HCPSS partners that give employees time to volunteer in schools or mentor students.

Although Howard County ranks among the top counties in the nation in terms of level of wealth and education, a rapidly growing number of our students come from families who struggle financially and in other ways. Partners create opportunities for students who might not otherwise have access to them due to lack of awareness, financial resources, or encouragement to reach beyond what students and their families thought was possible.

In order to accelerate academic achievement, HCPSS partners including local fraternities and sororities; FIRN; Helping Hands Enrichment Leadership Foundation; A-OK Mentoring and many other community volunteers donate countless hours assisting students with homework assignments, career exploration, computer use, and other activities during after-school programs. Volunteers at six Community Based Learning Centers help youth learn to use time constructively, develop academic and social skills, and have a positive impact in their community. The centers are provided through a partnership with the Columbia Housing Corporation, Howard County Department of Housing and Community Development, and Howard County Department of Recreation and Parks.

Engineers and scientists from the Washington Suburban Sanitation Commission's Wastewater Treatment Plant help students from the Biotechnology Career Academy directly apply the science and knowledge they obtained through their coursework to bioremediation and chemical techniques used to test, monitor, and treat local water samples.

Prepare for Success, a program of the Community Action Council of Howard County, helps ensure that students throughout Howard County are well equipped with necessary school supplies. The organization raises funds to purchase backpacks, collects donations of school supplies from points around the county, and then provides backpacks filled with necessary school supplies to elementary, middle, and high school students at the start of and during the school year.

ENGAGEMENT

The A+ Partners in EducationSM collaboration between the Howard County Library System (HCLS) and Howard County Public School System is the epitome of engagement. Launched in 2002, the partnership takes the library into the schools, and the schools – students, faculty, and staff – into the library.

The commitment of the HCLS to help the school system improve student success in exciting and inspiring ways is unsurpassed. The HCPSS and library system work together each year to produce a schedule of highly anticipated events and programs including the countywide Spelling Bee, Battle of the Books, Rube Goldberg Challenge, Summer Reading Club, and many others.

An important component of the A+ Partnership is providing each new student and teacher with a library card as part of the school registration process. Since 2002, 51,698 library cards have been issued to students and educators. The partnership also provides students with online, interactive, real-time, personalized instruction. The library system's free Homework Assistance connects students after school and at night to a pre-screened tutor in an online classroom where they can chat, browse the Web, share files, or collaborate on an interactive white board.

The library system recently introduced HiTech, a STEM digital media lab for teens. This leading-edge initiative captures the attention of teens while teaching science, technology, engineering, and math skills in preparation for 21st century careers. One HiTech project, a mobile game app – Escape from Detention!—has been downloaded 6,000 times across the globe. The response to HiTech has been overwhelming as students have jumped at the opportunity to explore Peer-to-peer communications and hands-on projects are at the core of the Howard County Library System's STEM digital media lab. Nearly 3,000 students have flocked to HiTech to use cutting-edge science, technology, engineering, and math to create video, music, game apps, and e-book projects.

The Howard County Conservancy's "We Are All Connected" program, a favorite among elementary school students, focuses on the role of producers, consumers and decomposers as well as the FBI—fungus, bacteria and insects. The hands-on approach makes students excited to visit the Conservancy and explore science.

and learn about STEM principles while having fun in the process.

In August, 995 soon-to-be students participated in Kindergarten, Here We Come!, a program designed to reduce the angst surrounding the first day of school. Both students and parents learn about a typical school day. Similar programs helped older students transition to middle and high school. Rising sixth grade students competed in a book bag relay and combination lock time-trial in Movin' Up to Middle School. Each library branch also provides discussion and lessons in study strategies, time management, and other skills for high school freshmen.

Dedication to educating and engaging youth are attributes also shared by the Howard County Conservancy. Since 2003, the Conservancy and school system have collaborated on ways to provide students with authentic learning experiences to solve real world problems.

In March, the Conservancy joined with a handful of local businesses to host 150 ninth graders for Weather to the Extreme, a one-day experiential conference offering students the opportunity to better understand extreme weather, its relationship to climate disruption, and how best to handle an extreme weather event. HCPSS Secondary Science Coordinator Mary Weller explained, "To be able to engage with experts in the community helps students take what they've learned in the classroom to the next level. After attending the conference, students begin to look at climate and weather in a different, real way."

The HCPSS engages all students to develop their unique talents and abilities, and to prepare them to participate in and serve their community with dignity and pride. Several elementary schools have a Primary Learner Program, through which students receive intensive, structured instruction focused on their significant communication needs. The Primary Learner Program students at Ilchester Elementary visit Green Valley Marketplace each month to gain practical experience in handling day-to-day tasks.

The HCPSS also joins with local universities to provide professional learning opportunities for the academic and clinical preparation of teachers, leadership development and the continuous professional advancement of both school system and higher education faculty. Some of the local institutions partnering with the HCPSS include College of Notre Dame, Howard Community College, Johns Hopkins University, Loyola University Maryland, McDaniel College, Morgan State University, Towson University, UMBC, and University of Maryland, College Park.

Students "shop" and check items off of their lists during their visits to Green Valley Marketplace. The monthly visits give Primary Learner Program students the opportunity to practice their communications skills by identifying grocery store items and interacting with grocery store staff and customers.

Leveraging the talent of a highly functioning staff is key to the HCPSS becoming a world-class educational system. Traditional and online partners such as Walden University help by providing continuous learning opportunities for staff to enhance job-specific knowledge and fine tune professional skills.

PERFORMANCE

Studies have shown that a key to preventing achievement gaps is to ensure that all kindergarteners start school ready to learn. The HCPSS partners with several organizations to help preschool-aged children and kindergartners build a sound foundation of academic and social skills needed for success in school. With this support, 89 percent of Howard County kindergartners were fully school-ready according to the 2012-13 Maryland Model for School Readiness Kindergarten Assessment.

The HCPSS partners with the Young School at King's Contrivance and the Howard Community College Children's Learning Center to provide a Preschool for All program, which supports expanded access to low-cost, high quality preschool. A close collaboration with Head Start, a program of the Community Action Council of Howard County, enhances educational services for preschool children, and provides professional development courses and resources for HCPSS early childhood teachers. Ready At Five provides parent and child activities and resources to help ensure that Maryland children are ready for school. The Howard County Office of Children's Services, Child Care Resource Center and Judy Center also partner to ensure that students enter school prepared to learn.

A wide variety of businesses and organizations collaborate with the HCPSS to provide targeted supports and programs to help accelerate achievement and close gaps. Several local non-profit organizations, including Conexiones; the NAACP, Howard County Branch; The Council of Elders of the Black Community of Howard County and fraternities and sororities, join with Howard County schools to serve as student mentors and role models, often inspiring their protégés to reach for higher goals. Students are encouraged to enroll in advanced placement classes, conduct advanced research projects, perform community service and attend college.

For more than 15 years the Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, Kappa Phi Lambda Chapter, has been promoting academic achievement for male students of color through the Alpha Achievers program. To qualify, students must maintain a 3.0 grade point average, perform community service, and participate in student leadership opportunities. Today, each of Howard County's 12 high schools has a thriving Alpha Achievers program with a total of more than 500 student members. Over the years, nearly 1500 young men have been inducted and have performed nearly 85,000 hours of community service.

To become a world leader in K-12 education, the HCPSS will build upon activities that have high quality, externally benchmarked performance measures. More and more students are testing their ideas and achievements against measurements developed by national or international organizations.

In April 2013, a combined team from the HCPSS Applications & Research Lab (ARL) and Howard High School won third place at the 12th annual National ProStart Invitational, a nationwide culinary and hospitality management competition for high schools. The ARL/Howard third place finish is the highest any Maryland team has placed in the national competition.

The Restaurant Association of Maryland Education Foundation and chefs from local restaurants—Bistro Blanc, Cattail Creek Country Club, Elkridge Furnace Inn, The Rumor Mill and more—provide the teams with guidance and support.

Success continued in April as the ARL Academy of Finance team competed against 27 teams from across the state in a three-round competition to win first place in the Maryland Council on Economic Education Personal Finance Challenge State Competition. Each team member was awarded $500 and an expenses-paid trip to the national competition on May 2 in St. Louis. Partners supporting the team and the competition included State Employee Credit Union (SECU), RetirementQuest, Consumer Credit Counseling Service of Maryland and Delaware, Credit Union Foundation of MD & DC, Wells Fargo, and Maryland Council on Economic Education.

Students, staff, and partners work together to improve the efficiencies and operations of schools. Forty-five of the county schools have obtained Green School Certification, an award by the Maryland Association for Environmental and Outdoor Education that recognizes a school's two-year effort to meet criteria in curriculum and instruction, best management practices, and community involvement. In addition, the HCPSS Commit to Be Fit program received Healthy Howard's Healthy Workplaces gold certification, and more than 50 schools were certified as Healthy Schools. The certifications recognize programs that align with national recommendations for comprehensive worksite wellness and childhood wellness.

The combined culinary team from the HCPSS ARL and Howard High School qualified for the national competition when they won first place in the Maryland ProStart Invitational in March 2013. Chef Marc Dixon of Bistro Blanc helped develop the menu and guide the students.

Eighteen elementary schools celebrated receiving Gold certification at Healthy Howard's Sixth Annual Healthy Schools Ceremony.

Rockburn Elementary students improve their schoolyard habitat as part of the Maryland Association for Environmental and Outdoor Education Green School certification. Other Green School initiatives include providing environmental study areas, designing energy and water conservation programs, and involving community members and partners in sustaining the environment.

WELL-BEING

After visiting the Gorman Farm, Jeffers Hill Elementary fourth grade students participating in the American Institute of Wine and Food Days of Taste program learn how to make a fresh salad and vinaigrette dressing under the guidance of Chef Tom Caswell of Cattail Creek Country Club.

Research demonstrates that academic performance is linked to student well-being, which consists of both academic and non-academic factors such as social-emotional safety, health, security, balanced lifestyle and engagement.

The HCPSS is fortunate to have many partners who support student and staff well-being in a variety of ways that stretch beyond the traditional scope of school. Partners help promote physical activity and healthy food choices, provide opportunities for students to explore arts and culture, build a welcoming and positive school environment, and strengthen safety and emergency practices.

Promoting physical activity as a part of every child's daily routine is essential to health and well-being.

Several community organizations partner with the HCPSS to help students understand and appreciate the value of healthy food choices. With Days of Taste, a program of the American Institute of Wine and Food, elementary school students discover the benefits and pleasures of fresh food by working with local chefs and farmers. Students evaluate diverse foods to learn the elements of taste and nutrition, visit a farm to discover how food is grown and transported from farm to grocery to home, and combine fresh seasonal vegetables and fruits to make a salad.

Promoting physical activity as a part of every child's daily routine is essential to health and well-being. A recent collaboration with We Promote Health provides interactive We Can! (Ways to Enhance Children's Activity & Nutrition) workshops for students and families at several elementary schools. We Can!, a national education outreach program designed by the National Institutes of Health, encourages family wellness and helps children stay healthy by improving food choices, increasing physical activity and reducing screen time.

A Howard County Department of Fire and Rescue Services representative conducts Hands-Only CPR training for HCPSS staff at the annual employee wellness expo.

Atholton High School Allied Sports students experience the pleasures and camaraderie of bowling through a partnership with Brunswick Bowling.

Sports also are a great way for students to stay healthy while learning important team-building skills. High school students, with and without disabilities, participate alongside each other in after-school bowling, golf, soccer and softball thanks to the HCPSS Allied Sports Program, supported by First Tee of Howard County and Brunswick Bowling.

School system employees also benefit from partners promoting healthy living. Virgin HealthMiles, the industry's top performing health engagement platform, serves as the foundation of the HCPSS Commit to Be Fit employee wellness program. The program encourages employees to adopt healthier lifestyles through education, incentives, and team activities.

Several HCPSS partnerships provide opportunities for students to develop competencies in the arts through a wide variety of experiences. HoCoPoLitSo (Howard County Poetry and Literature Society) brings great writing to life for students through engaging programs such as the Writer-in-Residence, a high school program that exposes students to some of the best poets and authors in the area.

Recognizing the role and benefit music can play in the academic achievement of students, Maryland Piano partners with the HCPSS to ensure that each high school has a quality piano for performances and recitals. The Columbia Art Center, part of the Columbia Association Community Services Division, and Howard County Tourism and Promotion support the visual arts by providing gallery space for student exhibits and receptions.

Demonstrating appropriate positive behavior, respecting peers, and modeling civility all play a role in creating a positive school environment. Howard Community College's Mediation and Conflict Resolution Center partners with HCPSS to help students express their emotions effectively and encourage staff to engage students in making school environments safe. High schools working with the Center have seen a decrease in school suspensions and office behavior referrals.

Keeping schools safe and secure is a community-wide collaborative effort. The HCPSS appreciates the unwavering support of the Howard County Department of Police and the Howard County Department of Fire and Rescue Services to provide a safe, healthy, and supportive school environment. The school system and Police Department have a longstanding and strong working relationship that includes developing emergency plans, training staff, conducting safety drills and practicing responses to different emergency situations.

The Department of Fire and Rescue Services is actively involved in providing teachers and students with life-saving Hands-Only CPR training. The Department also offers automated external defibrillator training for teachers and provides mannequins and instructional resources for use by HCPSS staff to help strengthen school system safety practices.

Working together, the school system and the Howard County Department of Police take a comprehensive approach to ensuring that students have a safe and secure place to learn. In addition to providing school resource officers for all high schools and several middle schools, the police along with Howard County Department of Fire and Rescue Services and the Office of Emergency Management conduct regular safety drills and exercises to ensure student and staff safety.

Volunteer Opportunities with the HCPSS

Single Day Commitment, 2013-2014

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED:	WHEN:	WHERE:	HCPSS CONTACT:
JUNIOR INTERVIEWERS Every HCPSS junior develops a resume and participates in a 20-30 minute interview to fulfill World of Work graduation requirements. Throughout the year, Guidance Counselors and English Teachers assist students with career preparation skills, including resume writing, professional dress and manners, as well as interviewing strategies. Each high school guidance office coordinates many community volunteers to conduct the interviews.	January through March 3 hours; scheduled per school	High schools throughout county; schedule to be determined	High School Guidance Office www.hcpss.org/schools/schools_high.shtml
BLACK SAGA COMPETITION The Black Saga Competition is an exciting, fun-filled forum for students (Grades 6-8) to learn about the experience of African Americans in the United States. School teams of up to three students each compete by studying the answers to more than 800 questions about the African American experience. HCPSS seeks volunteers to assist us in running the countywide competition.	Saturday, February 8 snow date Saturday, February 22	Veterans ES	Secondary Social Studies Mark Stout 410-313-6622 mark_stout@hcpss.org
Countywide STEM EXPO - JUDGES The HCPSS STEM Expo promotes student engagement and learning in science, technology, engineering, and mathematics through the display and presentation of student projects. Students from the county's middle and high schools participate. The HCPSS needs qualified community volunteers to review and evaluate student work.	To be determined/ Spring 2014	Long Reach HS	Secondary Science Mary Drew 410-313-6615 mary_drew@hcpss.org
MESA DAY - JUDGES Small teams of judges assess student competitions in bridge building, trebuchet, communications, and other events against a set of defined parameters. The Maryland MESA (mathematics, engineering and science achievement) program prepares students for academic and professional careers in mathematics, engineering, science and technology.	Regional Competition Friday, April 4	Johns Hopkins Applied Physics Lab	Harold L. Williams MESA Program Manager 410-313-5691 harold_williams@hcpss.org
Countywide HISTORY DAY - JUDGES The HCPSS annual History Day competition promotes the study of history while providing students a forum to compete for excellence in one of several categories: documentary, performance, exhibit, web page, and historical paper. Business and community members judge the competition by reviewing and evaluating student work based on criteria set by the national History Day Commission. Judging assignments will be mailed to participants with instructions and other details approximately one week prior to the competition.	Saturday, March 15 8 a.m.-3 p.m. snow date Saturday, March 29	Reservoir HS	Secondary Social Studies Kelly Reichardt 410-313-6622 kelly_reichardt@hcpss.org
PASSPORT TO THE FUTURE - INTERVIEWERS Through the Passport to the Future partnership, the Howard County Chamber of Commerce and the HCPSS share the commitment and responsibility for developing workforce-ready students who plan to pursue a career immediately after high school. Students earning Passport to the Future certification have mastered the skills necessary to be successful in work and career related experiences. One of the final requirements of the Passport program is successfully completing an "employment-like" interview. In addition to the Chamber volunteers, the HCPSS seeks local professionals to interview Passport students.	Friday, March 14	Howard Community College	Career Research and Development Stephanie Discepolo 410-313-7493 stephanie_discepolo@hcpss.org
SIMULATED CONGRESSIONAL HEARINGS - COACHES and JUDGES The simulated congressional hearing is the culminating activity of a HCPSS 5th grade curricular program - "We the People: The Citizen and the Constitution." Students play the role of constitutional experts and demonstrate their new-found knowledge and understanding of the United States Constitution and the Bill of Rights by presenting prepared oral statements before a panel of judges. Coaches help students locate resources, synthesize information, develop a speech and prepare for follow-up questions. Judges are community leaders who listen to the students testify, ask follow-up questions and provide valuable feedback.	Coaching March and April 1-2 hours during school day; Judging May and June 8:30 a.m.-2 p.m.	Elementary schools throughout county; schedule to be determined	Elementary Social Studies Kim Eggborn 410-313-5678 kimberly_eggborn@hcpss.org
