Title:

SAT Results for the Class of 2010 Date: September 23, 2010

Presenter(s):

$\qquad$

Overview:

The performance of the Class of 2010 on the SAT continues a trend of excellence. The mean composite score for the Class of 2010 is 1639 , which is 130 points higher than the national composite score and 137 points higher than Maryland's mean composite score. In addition, the number of HCPSS seniors taking the SAT in 2010 increased by 201 students when compared to the Class of 2009. All student groups were represented in this increase.

The results presented in this report will vary from those published by the College Board. The College Board relies on self-report information provided by students taking the test. Through an internal analysis process, the Howard County Public School System verifies and corrects the information provided by the students. The results presented in this report reflect only those students confirmed as HCPSS test takers and graduates of the Class of 2010. State and national results reflect those in the profile reports published by College Board.

Recommendation/Future Direction:

While the performance of the Class of 2010 continues to exceed state and national averages, the HCPSS will continue to support improvement in both participation and performance on the SAT. There are discrepancies among the performance of student groups that will continue to be addressed through a variety of strategies.

Background

Published by the College Board and scored by the Educational Testing Service, the SAT is a standardized test designed to measure high-school level knowledge in three sections - Critical Reading, Writing, and Mathematics. Each section is scored on a scale that ranges from 200 (lowest) to 800 (highest). The maximum total score, comprised of scores from all three sections, is 2400. The scores from the SAT, in addition to other student information, are used by colleges and universities to evaluate students' readiness for college work.

The College Board reports that almost 1.6 million students took the SAT in 2010 nationally, more students than ever before. ${ }^{1}$ In Maryland, 46,370 students took the SAT in 2010, a one percent decrease from 2009. The Howard County Public School System (HCPSS) tested 3,021 students in 2010, an increase of a little over six percent from 2009.

About this Report

This report presents scores on the SAT for the HCPSS students from the Class of 2010. The trend performance begins with the Class of 2006, the first year in which writing scores became available.

The results presented in this report will vary from those published by the College Board. The College Board relies on self-report information provided by students taking the test. Through an internal analysis process, the HCPSS verifies and corrects the information provided by the students. The results presented in this report reflect only those students confirmed as HCPSS test takers and graduates of the Class of 2010. State and national results reflect those in the profile reports published by College Board.

HCPSS Participation in SAT

In 2010, a total of 3,021 students in the HCPSS ( 73.3 percent of the graduating class) took the SAT. This number represents a decrease of two percent from 2009 when 2,820 (75.3 percent) of the graduating class took the test.

When comparing the 2010 participation rate to the 2009 participation rate, the African American student group showed the greatest increase among the racial/ethnic groups. In 2009, 471 students or 16.8 percent of the entire testing population were African Americans. In 2010, the participation of African Americans increased by 90 students, 18.6 percent of the HCPSS' 2010 SAT testing population.

The number of American Indian/Alaskan students who participated is omitted because fewer than 10 students are included in this group across the trend years.

Overall Results for the Graduating Class of 2010

The average SAT scores for the HCPSS students from 2006 to 2010 are shown in Table 2. The Graduating Class of 2010 demonstrated results similar to their peers from previous years. This relatively flat performance is consistent at both the state and national levels as well.

|  | Nation | 497 | 494 | 494 | 493 | 492 |

The HCPSS 2010 average scores surpass those of Maryland and the nation in all areas. The average scores for HCPSS, Maryland, and the nation are displayed in Figure 1.

Results by Gender
Males outperformed female students on two sections, scoring five points higher in Critical Reading and 40 points higher in Mathematics. On the Writing portion of the 2010 SAT, female students performed higher than males by twelve points.

The results for HCPSS' male and female students in 2010 mirror the trends from 2006 to 2009. Similar trends are seen in analyzing the results by gender for the state and the nation. These data are presented in Table 3.

Results by Race/Ethnicity

The average scores by race/ethnicity for the HCPSS, Maryland, and the nation since 2006 are displayed in Table 4. These data show that HCPSS students performed highest on all three sections of the SAT every year. The average score is greater than 40 points for some groups, particularly in comparing HCPSS scores to the average scores of the nation.

Results by School
The 2010 average results by school reveal that in most cases, the HCPSS schools exceeded the state and national averages. Table 5 presents these data.

Summary of Results

The graduating class of 2010 overall has continued the established trend of achieving average scores that are higher than the state and the nation - 137 and 130 points respectively. The same is true for the performance of each of the student groups. Also, the number of students taking the SAT in 2010 increased from the previous year for students overall and all student groups.

The accomplishments of the Graduating Class of 2010 are noteworthy. The discrepancy among the performance of student groups continues to be an area for improvement. The gaps in performance between gender and racial/ethnic groups are being addressed through a variety of programs, including STEM initiatives and the work of academic mentors and liaisons in the high schools.
