FRENCH IV Unit I

La beauté et l’esthétique: Qu’est-ce que la beauté?

Overview. In this unit, students will explore the idea of beauty from a variety of cultural perspectives. Students will identify different aspects of beauty as present in fairy tales, poetry, and art. Students will compare artwork from Haiti, France, the U.S., and other countries in order to identify how culture influences one’s concept of beauty. Students will use advanced adjectives to analyze art and literature and to describe their own idea of beauty. Students will also explore the relationship between beauty and self-image and will interpret authentic resources that discuss the topic of developing positive self-image.

Essential Questions:
● What factors contribute to self image?
● How does culture influence our concept of beauty?
● How is beauty represented in art and literature?

Enduring Understandings:
● Perception of beauty varies among cultures and individuals.
● Art and literature reflect the idea of beauty in a culture.

CURRICULUM STANDARDS / STUDENT OUTCOMES

Communication

Interpersonal
● Express and defend with detail personal preferences, feelings, and opinions of beauty related to a work of art. (WLC 1.1.b.)

Personal Enrichment
• Relate francophone cultural perspectives of self-image and beauty to personal beliefs and practices. (WLC 5.2.c.)
Overview. In this unit, students will describe and identify causes of revolutionary movements, activism and protest in a variety of Francophone cultures. They will examine, define and defend human rights and privileges through the use of authentic materials and student texts. Students will use advanced application of the present tense, negation, pronominal verbs, transitions, narration of historical events in the past, and vocabulary to express an opinion and compare ideas and events. They will apply these skills through a variety of performance-based assessment tasks: enacting a role-play regarding key historical figures of the French Revolution, researching and presenting their findings on a revolutionary leader in a Francophone culture, and comparing two historical speeches by Charles de Gaulle and René Lévesque, two influential Francophone leaders. Moreover, students will explore how the fight for human rights and privileges led to key historical events in the Francophone world.

Essential Questions:
• How do individuals and cultures determine human rights, needs, and privileges?
  Comment les cultures déterminent-elles les droits humains, les besoins et les privilèges?
• What role do leaders and social activists play in global development?
  Quel rôle les chefs politiques jouent-ils dans le développement mondial?
• How do groups of people influence one another?
  Comment les gens s’influencent?

Enduring Understandings:
• There are basic human rights that all individuals deserve. Il y a des droits fondamentaux humains que chacun mérite.
• Countries and communities are codependent and influence one another. Les pays et les communautés sont codépendants, coexistent et s’influencent.

Overview. In this unit, students examine and evaluate their talents and interests as guiding forces in making future career choices. Students explore characteristics of their chosen career, such as education required, job market considerations, income, hours, location, etc., and what impact a chosen career will have upon their personal lives. They also investigate the role that work plays in the lives of people in the United States as compared to French-speaking countries. Students create a personal definition of what it means to be successful in their chosen field.

To gain practical, real-world experience, students apply for a mock internship with a company or organization with offices in a French-speaking country in the area of interest they have chosen. Students gain practical and applicable knowledge through reading classified ads, completing a job application, participating in a mock job interview, and writing a cover letter to a future employer.

Essential Questions:
- How do one’s talents and interests influence a future career choice?
- How does career choice impact an individual’s quality of life?

Enduring Understandings:
- Many factors influence career choices.
- One’s chosen career will affect other areas of one’s life.
- Perspectives toward work vary across cultures.
